

THE PROJECT:

“Experiential Learning in Historical sites and museums” is a partnership project which intends to create a network of cultural organisations, museums, public funding bodies and training centres in Europe willing to share experiences and different aspects of developing experiential learning activities in museums or historical sites in rural areas.

The partnership will examine the learning possibilities and competences required by staff to develop learning resources to boost the confidence and proficiency of museums and/or historical sites which currently offer limited learning activities.

AIMS AND OBJECTIVES:

The overall objectives of the partnership are:

- to establish the key competences of staff working in museums which plan innovative educational paths for adults;
- to improve networking of historical sites and museums through sharing of experiences at local, national and European level;
- to stimulate the reactions and views of the project participants, engaging them in planning new educational paths within their organizations following the common guidelines;

- to enable the local stakeholders to benefit from the opportunities developed within the project;

In order to achieve such objectives, partners will share and explore each other’s experiences to create a functional network of organisations with the aim of engaging a great number of external visitors and analysing good and bad practice examples. This will be done through a public online platform.

TARGET GROUP

The target group of this project are people working in cultural associations, public offices and museums which follow and manage the promotion of historical sites and trainers which manage and plan experiential learning for adults.
